

Gentlemen...

This is reprehensible. Who will actually benefit from expanding these fees to wireless ISPs? From my perspective only large existing monopolies who will have less competition, and thus less incentive to provide better service.

Do you remember the cost of a cross-county phone call before the long-distance competition? This legislation is moving in favor of existing monopolies and the expense of consumers and small ISPs.

Please reconsider this.

Sincerely,

Brian Herdeg
Computer Consultant
<www.herdeg.org/consulting>